

November 2014

Get It Girl

Anna H

Lauren F

Kelly M

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.chapman.edu/feminist_zines

Part of the Gender and Sexuality Commons, and the Women's Studies Commons

Recommended Citation

H, Anna; F, Lauren; and M, Kelly, "Get It Girl" (2014). Women's Studies, Feminist Zine Archive. Book 29.
http://digitalcommons.chapman.edu/feminist_zines/29

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the Frank Mt. Pleasant Library of Special Collections and Archives at Chapman University Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Women's Studies, Feminist Zine Archive by an authorized administrator of Chapman University Digital Commons. For more information, please contact laughtin@chapman.edu.

ا

ف

ل

ف

ر

و

ل

ا

و

Oh Janelle!

When single mothers are working around the world to receive an education, career, and provide for the children, one should wonder why we aren't praising and paying them for their achievements or call them hero's? and why is MTV still polluting young girls minds with Janelle Evan's?

To date Janelle has been arrested eight times for position, battery, harassment, and a slew of other charges, leading her losing custody of her child. We see girls like Janelle paraded around on TV too often, being robbed of their privacy, identity, and children for cheap fame and small wages.

To be honest, I get sad when I think about how the generation will be linked to the viewership of the Teen Mom phenomenon. We see girls that are clearly screaming for help, as they are blindly jockeyed around like horses on a track with the fat cat producers riding on their back, racing to reap the benefits.

If we are going to be honest, the whole teen mom craze seems look more like a new form of modern day slavery oppose entertainment. Think about it, don't watch it and stop the demand for oppressive entertainment!

Teen Mom Farrah has gotten a boob job, had a sex and released a pop single since she started Teen Mom. Another case of pop culture princess gone wrong, Farrah still draws in 13 year olds even though her life is rather NSFW. Girls should get more praise for all of the awesome things girls do, not be recognized and idolized for all of their mishaps. When was the last time there was a media frenzy over the dude in the sex tape? We're taught so young that to be noticed we have to be bad - we have to fuck up and then we'll get our own show on MTV. Nobody's talking or gossiping about the teen starts that are doing something important with their lives - we are a culture obsessed with watching others, even our fellow sisters, fall.

http://assets.nydailynews.com/polopoly_fs/1.1057301.13337302681/img/httpImage/image.jpg_gen/derivatives/gallery_635/farah-abraham.jpg

Author, editor, singer, actress, crafter, fashion icon.... "phew"...Travi Gevinson, hit the fashion scene at the age of eleven. Now sixteen, with her own book and online magazine "Rookie Magazine," she is writing about things that matter like, DIY tampons, and empowering girls everywhere with her feminist message. She's a young girl talking about things that grown women's magazines don't even address honestly, like masturbation, dressing butch, and how to network without feeling gross.

Born and raised in Oak Park Illinois, and the daughter of a weaver and a teacher, Travi Gevinson is a girl to reckon with. She's teaching young girls how to wear their "bitch face" with pride and take the world by storm with her crafty and affordable fashion idea, ideas that are way more affordable than those of teen vogue or seventeen. Travi also sends out a progressive message of acceptance highlighting girls, guys, and drag queens of all shapes and sizes.

All her tips saving money and looking fly have landed her on Forbes top 30 under 30, and in the front row of shoes like Chanel, and Miu Miu! Today Travi has over 30,000 readers each day. In one of her most recent articles Getting It straight: Myths and misconceptions about queer sex lives, telling her readers, "the comments section on this post is probably one of very few places in the world where it's appropriate to ask REAL nosy questions, so go ahead and do that too! Asking her staffers in same sex relationships to debunk the many myths about their sexuality.

Travi is truly a girl on a mission! So do the cool thing, check her out!

Whats Love Got to do With it?

It's no secret that every girl above the age of ten wants to be Miley Cyrus. Starring as a tv super star living a double life as a normal high school girl? Too enticing not to inspire us all. Hannah Montana premiered in 2006, and quickly became the highest rated series on basic cable. Since then, she has pioneering a solo singing career. bringing her tv role to a reality, and released four hugely grossing studio albums. As if that's not enough, she then starred in many feature films including The Last Song, where she met Liam Hemsworth. The two dated off and on for three years, and now are reportedly engaged. Although recently, rumors have been swirling that it may be delayed or cancelled. Okay, so I'm happy she's happy. But what does this say to young girls watching her show at night and seeing her latest engagement drama on the news in the morning?

Her accomplishments represent a powerful, independent woman. Yet she's already committing to share half her wealth with half of someone else for the rest of her life? I just hope it doesn't turn in to another 72-hour marriage that I keep seeing on the cover of every magazine.

cute butt,

coming soon!

These days you can't pick up a teen magazine without seeing workout routines, diet plans, and makeup galore. But who is really reading these? Does anyone age 17 still read Seventeen Magazine? I think by then they've moved on to Cosmo (a whole nother issue...). But the point is, these messages about beauty and bodies are being sent out to girls so young. They are told they need to wear makeup, to work out to tone their butt (not to be healthy, just to look hot), to watch what they eat because bikini season is coming up. Girls start reading these things younger and younger which ends their childhood ignorant bliss sooner and sooner.

Talia Castanello

13 year old Talia Castanello is a self-made Youtube sensation, make up artist, fashion designer, and new Covergirl. Last year, she started playing around with makeup, and like many other preteens decided to make her own youtube channel. Although most kids have an extraordinary amount of free time, Talia especially does due to her diagnosis of stage four neuroblastoma cancer. Recording out of her hospital room, she became infatuated with makeup as a distraction from the hardships she faces on a daily basis. With 15 million views on her channel and a serious talent, she was invited to meet Ellen Degeneres, her long time hero. The two had a heart felt introduction, and Ellen invited Talia to be an honorary Covergirl. Only fitting, since the girl has a real knack for their products. Since then, Talia has been receiving donations from makeup brands all over the nation. She has also teamed up with fashion designer Urbana Chappana, owner and creator of Maison de Urbana, to design a clothing line for teenagers.

